HAVE CROSSED BZURA IN VERY STRONG FORCE

Kaiser's Troops Capture Three Towns in Russian Poland, is Report

BERLIN FULL OF RUMORS OF VICTORY

But No Decision Has Been Reached in the Great Eastern Battle Being Fought Between the Warta and the Vistula Rivers—Dispatches State That the Losses on Both Sides Are Very Heavy—Petrograd Announces That the Russians Have Taken Many Prisoners.

(By International News Service)

Berlin, Nov. 23.—Steadily pressing forward on the Vistula, the German forces in Russian Poland captured the towns of Lomza, Debske and Reznaw, it is semi-officially announced. Reznaw is thirty miles west of Warsaw.

News of the capture of Lomza, on the south bank of the Bzura river indicates that the Germans have crossed that river in force. The recapture of Warsaw by the Germans is imminent it is stated.

Both Sides Lose Heavily

Petrograd, Nov. 23.—The German column between the Warta and Vistula rivers, according to yesterday's official reports from Russian Poland, comprises six army corps, and presents a front fifty-five miles in extent. The two rivers prevent flanking by either side, hence the fighting consists of straight frontal attacks, in which the losses of both armies are heavy, but neither side so far has been able to gain a marked advantage.

The German military observers contend, however, that further in this region, since the Russian concentration, which was delayed by bad roads and by lack of railroads, now is complete.

Russians Take 2000 Prisoners

The following official report from general headquarters was issued last night:

"The fighting between the Vistula and the Warta continues with great persistence. We have obtained some partial successes.

"The fighting on the front of Czestochowa-Cracow have resulted in no essential changes. We have taken 2000 prisoners and some machine guns.

"In Galicia the Austrians have evacuated Novy-Sandez under the pressure of our troops."

Dispatches received in Petrograd from Tiflis, Transcaucasia, explain the halt in the Russian advance toward Kopylov: was due to the discovery that an entire Turkish army was massed at Erzerum. The Russians are contending themselves, it is said, with holding their positions while awaiting reinforcements.

JAP INFANTRY DESTROYING ENTANGLEMENTS.

In the many engagements preceding the fall of Kiao-Chan, the Japanese were constantly hindered by numerous barbed wire entanglements, strung to protect the defenses. OVER ONE MILLION VOTES WERE CAST

Official Figures of Election of United States Senator

MAJORITY AGAINST PENROSE

If Opposition to Penrose Had Been Combined He Would Have Been Defeated by More Than 20,000—Pinchot Led Palmer by 3000—Personal Liberty Vote Was Small.

About one million one hundred thousand votes were cast at the recent state election for United States senator, governor, congressmen, members of the legislature and judges. The totals of the Brumbaugh-McCormick vote amount to 1,040,931. The combined vote for United States senator for Penrose, Palmer and Pinchot was 1,048,162. When the figures are completed at Harrisburg so as to include the other candidates, such as Socialist, Prohibition, etc., it will bring the total close to the estimate.

The totals for the presidential electors in 1912 was 1,217,796 votes. It will at once be seen by comparison that the interest of the voters in the issues of November 3 was intense. The contest against Senator Penrose drew out the voters. The Personal Liberty party, about which so much was said in the campaign and which it was claimed was to do so much for Penrose, gave him only 20,286 votes. Of these about 1800 were cast in Elk county where Senator James K. P. Hall, the Democratic leader, resides. The Hall Democrats flocked to the Penrose banner under the Personal Liberty disguise and thus evaded supporting Palmer and McCormick. The Keystone party managed to creep in under the law with a total of about 37,838 for Brumbaugh.

The Personal Liberty folks gave Brumbaugh 17,818 votes. The Bull Moose polled nearly 50,000 votes; the Roosevelt Progressives nearly 20,000 votes. These went to Gifford Pinchot alone, and are lumped in his return from Allegheny county, so they cannot be distinguished in the hurried official count. In the 66 counties outside Allegheny the Bull Moose polled 42,143 votes and the Roosevelt Progressives, 14,426.

The official vote for lieutenant governor, secretary of internal affairs and other officers, including the congressmen-at-large, will probably be announced soon from Harrisburg.

The official vote for lieutenant governor is given below:

AIR-LINE RAILROAD
ACROSS THE STATE

AIR-LINE RAILROAD ACROSS THE STATE

Revival of a Project Inaugurated Several Years Ago

HOUTZDALE IS ON THE ROUTE

New Road Would Tap a Section Now Without Adequate Shipping Facilities and Would Reach Part of State in Which 2,500,000 People Reside—Would Cost $27,000,000.

Harrisburg, Nov. 23.—The sum of $27,000,000 will be expended in building the New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago Railway company's air line through the central part of Pennsylvania, if the plans of this company, which was organized after a sheriff's sale in Pittsburgh, October 31, are carried out.

The company is now nominally owned by Edward T. Noble, of the law firm of Evans, Noble & Evans, of Pittsburgh, but in a statement filed with the Pennsylvania public service commission he says that he will convey the property, franchises and rights to the new corporation. Mr. Noble bought the property at the Pittsburgh sale, the company then being known as the New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago Air Line Railroad company.

The company is owned by the Harriman estate, and the completion of its plans, which has already used up $5,000 in surveys and the purchase of rights of way, will mean much additional work for the people of Pennsylvania, for this state's resources can be drawn upon for all the iron and steel, timber, ballast and labor.

The approval by the public service commission of the reorganization of the old company, chartered May 26, 1910, is virtually approval of a new charter, for under the Pennsylvania laws the company would have only until next May to apply for rechartering the old company.

The original charter of the air line railroad was issued March 16, 1908, when that company was organized after the merger of the Brush Creek and Crows Run Railroad company, Allentown, Tamaqua and Ashland company and the Indiana, Clearfield and Eastern company.

The new line will be 83.7 miles shorter between New York and Pittsburgh than any other road. Issuance of 17,000 shares of common capital stock at $50 par, or $850,000, has been authorized. The company, however, desires at this time to issue only $600,000 worth of this stock. No preferred stock is provided for.

In order that the charter would be valid, the company, a few years ago, constructed a quarter mile of track in Armstrong county, but the survey of the line has been finished. Connections will be made with other lines at Pittsburgh and at Allentown.

The route as surveyed passes through Allegheny, Westmoreland, Armstrong, Indiana, Clearfield, Centre, Blair, Mifflin, Union, Snyder, Northumberland, Schuylkill and Lehigh counties.

RESIDENTS OF ROSSITER HAVING LIGHT TROUBLE

Residents of Rossiter will not be so prodigal with their electric lights in the future for all electric light service in that town is now on meter.

The Clearfield Bituminous Coal company served the town with light until very recently. A flat rate was given and the consumers burned their lights night and day. The "juice" has now been purchased by a private company and this concern is assessing the consumer by meter. The town has been newly wired and new poles have been erected.

Discrimination Alleged

The Adrian Furnace company, of DuBois, has filed a protest with the Public Service commission complaining that the Pennsylvania railroad will not allow that company the same rate on pig iron from Josephine to points along its lines as it does the Josephine Furnace company.

GERMAN SHELLS SET FIRE TO YPRES CATHEDRAL

Violent Cannonading by Kaiser's Artillery Marks Sunday's Battle

THREE SHARP ATTACKS WERE REPULSED

AMERICANS EVACUATE CITY OF YPRES

(By International News Service)

Ypres, Nov. 23.—The embarkation of 6000 American troops on eight transports began early today and was completed by the middle afternoon. Several thousand Caranzais were waiting outside the city to occupy it as soon as all the Americans had embarked.

The departure of the troops was mourned by many Belgians as a calamity. They would have liked the Americans to stay until peace had been established.

The war ships will remain in the harbor to protect Americans.

The intention of Carranza to make Ypres his capital may result in an attack by the Villistas. Unconfirmed rumors are current here that the Zapatistas attacked Mexico City and are fighting in the streets.

Wires are Cut

New York, Nov. 23.—Communications with Mexico City today have been cut off.

Preparing for Attack

Mexico City, Nov. 23.—Armed guards were placed on the roof of the national palace and a large force was stationed in the arsenal by Gen. Blanco to prevent an attempt at seizure. Students formed in procession when the news of the American troops evacuating Ypres reached here. They paraded the principal streets, shouting "Viva Mexico."

An alarm of fire from the Third ward yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock started the citizens and called out the firemen but the alarm was found to be false before the engines were gotten out.

Christians Killed in Trebizond

(By International News Service)

Athens, Nov. 23.—A dispatch from Constantinople says a large force of Turkish troops were transferred from Adrianople to Trebizond, Asia Minor. They attacked all shops of Christians in the latter town and killed three.

Paris, Nov. 23.—Shells hurled into Ypres by the Germans set fire to the famous cathedral of St. Martin, the noted Halls, or cloth hall, and numerous houses. The Germans are directing their attacks against Ypres, Soissons and Rheims. Three attacks in the Argonne have been repulsed.

Violent Cannonading

The announcement says: "Yesterday marked a violent cannonade by the enemy, which directed their blow particularly upon Ypres, where the cathedral belfry, the Halls and numerous houses were set on fire and upon Soissons and Rheims. At Argonne the day was very warm. Three sharp attacks by the enemy were repulsed. In the Vosges region and the Vosges the situation is unchanged."

Germans Driven Back

Continued artillery fighting was reported in yesterday's official statements of the battle in France and Belgium. Batteries of the allies have demolished many lines of German trenches, driving the Germans back to new defenses.

German bombardment of Ypres, in Belgium, was announced in last night's communique, which says:

"Today there was a violent bombardment of Ypres, during which the market place and the town hall were destroyed. "In the region of Soissons and Valley there was rather strong cannonading. There is nothing to report from other parts of the front."

Demolished German Trenches

Following is yesterday afternoon's official statement:

"The day of the 21st was calm upon the whole front. In Belgium, as in the region from Arras to the Oise, there were only intermittent cannonades. Our artillery evidenced in general more activity than that of the enemy. Our batteries succeeded in demolishing many lines of German trenches. The enemy worked elsewhere to construct new ones in the rear."

"The day was equally calm upon the Aisne, in the Champagne district, as well as in the Argonne, upon the heights of the Meuse and in the Vosges."

PRESIDENT'S THANKSGIVING DAY PLANS UNCERTAIN

Washington, Nov. 23.—Conflicting rumors surrounding President Wilson's Thanksgiving day plans led Secretary Tamm to announce that Mr. Wilson will go to Williamsburg, Mass., to visit his daughter, Mrs. F. French Troops Destroyed By Moroccan Tribe

(By International News Service)

Madrid, Nov. 23.—The defeat of a French column and the slaughter of thirty officers and six hundred soldiers by Moroccan tribesmen is reported in press dispatch from Tangier.

The dispatch says: "While a French column under Col. Laverdure was returning to Jarama after punishing the Zaien tribe in Morocco, it was surprised and completely destroyed by five thousand Zaiens. The French lost thirty officers and six hundred soldiers. Many were wounded."

"Two batteries and a punitive expedition are going to finish the Zaiens, whose rebellion is serious. The tribe is the most piratical in the Atlas region and is able to furnish 12,000 horsemen."

The Million Dollar Mystery

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

(Copyright, 1914, by Harold MacGrath)

"But we can't stir the old fool. We can't get him out of that house. I've tried to get that maid to put a little something in his coffee, but she won't do it. She says that she is old and she agreed in regard to Florence, but her agreement ended there."

"Why, Susan, What's the Matter?" Gried Florence.

We have given the jade five thousand already and she is clamoring for the balance."

"Have you threatened her?" asked Olga.

Braime smiled a little. "My dear woman, it is fifty-fifty. While I have a hold on her, it is not quite so good as she has on me. We are not dealing with an ordinary servant we could threaten and scare. No, indeed, I shrewd little woman who desperately wanted money. And she will be paid; not getting out of it. She will not move another step, one way or the other, after she receives the balance. Hargrave will have a pretty steep bill to pay when the time comes."

"She has no idea where the million is!"

"If she had, she's quite capable of looking it off all by herself," said Braime.

"The doctor laughed. "Olga" went on Braime. "You must look at it as I do: that it is still in the middle of the game, and we have neither lost nor won."

"How do you know that Hargrave may not have it all back and call an organization quite as capable as not as large as mine?" suggested the Physician.

"That is not possible," Braime declared without hesitation.

"Well, it begins to look that way to me. We've never made a move yet that hasn't been blocked."

"Pure luck each time, I tell you; the devil's own luck always at the critical moment, when everything seems to be in our hands. Now, we want Florence, and we've tried a hundred ways to accomplish this fact and failed. The question is, how to get her away from her companion?"

"Simple enough," said the doctor complacently.

"Out with it, if you have an idea."

The doctor leaned forward and whispered a few words.

"Well, I'm hanged!" Braime laughed and slapped the doctor on the shoulder. "The simplest thing in the world. Mad dog wouldn't be in it. I always said that you had gray matter if you cared to exert yourself."

"Thanks," replied the doctor dryly. "I'll drop down there tomorrow, if you say so, ostensibly to see the other patient. It will make a decent of a disturbance."

"Not if you scare the hotel people!"

"That is what I propose to do. They will not want such a thing known. It would scare every one away for the rest of the season. But of course this depends upon whether they are honest or in the hotel business to make money."

Again Braime laughed. "Bring her back to New York alone, Esculapian, and a fat check is yours. Nothing could be simpler than an idea like this. It's a fact; no man can think of everything, and you've just proved it to me. I've tried to do a general's work without aids. Olga, does any one watch me come and go any more?"

"No, I've watched a dozen nights. The man has gone. Either he found out what he wanted or he gave up the job. To my mind he found out what he wanted."

"And what's that?"

"Heaven knows!" discouragedly. "Come, doctor, suppose you and I go down to Daly's for a little turn at billiards?"

"Nothing would suit me better."

"All aboard, then! Good-night, Olga. Keep your hair on! I mean your own hair. We're going to win out, don't you worry. In all games the minute you begin to doubt you begin to lose."

go his chair again, and effectually would sing the keys of the machine. The story he was writing was in the ordinary routine; the arrival of a great ocean liner with some political notables who were not adverse to denouncing the present administration. You will have noticed, no doubt, that some disgruntled politician is always denouncing the present administration. It matters not if it be Republican or Democratic. When you are out of a good job you are always prone to denounce. The yarn bored Norton because his thoughts were miles southward.

He completed his story, yanked out the final sheet, called for a copy boy, rose and sauntered over to the managing editor's door, before which he paused indecisively. The "old man" had been after him lately regarding the Hargrave story, and he doubted if his errand would prove successful. However, he boldly opened the door and walked in.

"Humph!" said the "old man," twisting his cigar into the corner of his mouth. "Got that story?"

Norton sat down. "Yes, but I have not got it for print yet. Mr. Hargrave when you gave me the Hargrave job you gave me carte blanche."

"I did," grimly. "But, on the other hand, I did not give you ten years to clear it up."

"Have I ever fallen down on a good story?" quipped.

"Well, if you'll have patience I'll not fall down on this one. It's the greatest criminal story I ever handled, but it's so big that it's going to take time."

"Gimme an outline."

"I have promised not to," with a grimace equal to the "old man's."

"If a line of this story trickles out it will mean that every other paper will be moving around, and in the end will discover enough to spoil my end of it. I'll tell you this much: The most colossal band of thieves this country ever saw is at one end of the stick. And when I say that, counterfeiting and politics and millions are involved, you'll understand how big it is. This gang has city protection. We are running them all into a corner, but we want that corner so deep that none of them can wriggle out of it."

"Umhm. Go on."

"I want two months more."

The "old man" beat a tattoo with his fat pencil. "Sixty days, then. And if the yarn isn't on my desk at mid night, you—"

"Hunt for another job. All right, I came in to ask for three days leave."

You're your own boss, Jim, for sixty days more. Whadda y' mean counterfeiting?"

"These new tens and twenties. It's a stumble on that right, why, I can turn it over without conflicting with the other story."

"Well, go to it."

"I'm turning in my regular work day in and day out, and while doing it I've gone through more hairbreadth escapes than you ever heard of. They have been after me, I've dodged falling sales; I've been shanghaied, poisoned; but I haven't said a word."

"Good Lord! Do you mean all that?"

"Every word, sir."

"I'll make it ninety days, Jim; and if this story comes in I'll see that you get a corking bonus."

"I'm not looking for bonuses. I'm proud of my work. To get this story is all I want. That'll be enough. Thanks for the extension in time. Good-night."

HIGH COST OF BASEBALLING COULD EASILY BE CUT

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

(Special to Progress.)

New York, November 22.—Those baseball moguls who are shrieking about the high cost of baseballing could swat the aforementioned high cost a lousy swat by using the paring knife on their rosters.

It seems to be fashionable, but entirely unnecessary, for major leagues clubs to carry from 25 to 30 men on their pay roll all year long. These same clubs could get along just as nicely by carrying 30 players and no more. Such a plan would annually save the clubs about $25,000 in salaries and about $5000 in travelling expenses. A salary "not to be sneezed at" in these parlous baseball times.

To us it seems like bank extravagance and folly for a baseball club to carry more than 20 players at the very most. The men who own the clubs seem to think otherwise just now but some of these days when a strict retrenchment policy must be enforced they will whittle their lists down to 20 men and discover that those players they discarded are not missed except on pay days.

The average major league club now carries about 10 pitchers, four catchers, six outfielders, six infielders one or two general utility men, a manager, an assistant manager (or coach) and about two trainers.

A major league ball club could operate and successfully—with six pitchers, three catchers, four outfielders, five infielders, one general utility man, one manager and one trainer. That would make a total of 21 men including the manager and a trainer—19 players.

The Boston Braves are a fine example of how much can be accomplished with a few men. The Braves it is true carried as many men on their roster last year as any other team, but the Braves used fewer men after Stallings had decided upon his combination than any other team.

Stallings over a stretch of more than two months used two catchers, five infielders and five outfielders. In the box he used only three pitchers until the double header season came along and even then he could have gotten along very nicely with six pitchers.

The Athletics are another sample of how much can be accomplished with few players. The Athletics carried about 25 players during the year, yet Connie Mack could have accomplished the same thing with sixteen men, for the other nine men did little else than warm the bench during the entire season.

"What would happen to a club carrying only 20 men if it hit a streak of hard luck that laid up some of its regulars?" is the natural question for as radical a suggestion as cutting the roster down to 20 men.

The answer is simple—"fill their places with the extra men."

If the first baseman and second baseman were laid up at the same time the utility man could play first, second, and the catcher could play first.

If two outfielders, two infielders, a catcher and a pitcher, were rendered hors de baseball at the same time a big calamity indeed—a club carrying only twenty men wouldn't be so badly crippled as it would seem upon first thought.

The club still would have five pitchers. Stallings needed only three to win the pennant for him: The club would have two catchers. That's all Connie Mack and Stallings needed.

With two of the four outfielders injured there would be two left. The utility player could free the other garden.

The club carrying five infielders would have three left if two were injured. The extra-catcher could be placed on first and the three other infielders could fill the second and third and shortstopping jobs.

Some criticism, no doubt, will be made concerning the suggestion of playing the catcher at first, or playing the catcher in the outfield if necessary. The catcher, some may say, may be a good catcher but poor in any other position.

True, practice makes perfect. If a club operated with 20 men only, it could teach each man on the team to become a general utility man. In the old days pitchers used to play in the outfield or infield on days when they weren't on the mound. Why not now?

If records count for anything, the pitchers who used to work every day on the old days either in the box or in the field, lost none of their pitching prowess because of constant work.

And the human race was no harder in those days of all Spalding, Johnson, Ward, Tim Whitney, Charley Radbourn, John Clarkson, Larry Corcoran, than it is in these days of Christy Mathewson, Walker, Johnson, Jeff Tesreau, Joe Wood, Eddie Plank, Dick Rudolph and Grover Alexander.

INCREASED RAILROAD RATES A VITAL NEED

James J. Hill, in an article on the "After Effects of the War on Business and Railroads" in the current issue of the Railway Age Gazette, expresses belief that catastrophe threatens this country as the result of the war if the railroads are not given help.

"The magnitude and urgency of this matter," he says, "have not yet impressed themselves duly upon the people of this country. They have been too stunned by the awful and unexpected spectacle abroad to realize the railroad situation in the light thrown upon it by the vivid flames of conflict. But it cannot be relegated to a later time or an inferior place.

"The railroad is the sap of the industrial tree. It is the thermometer of credit.

"No duty devolving upon those who sit in the watch tower while nations sway and fall below them, studying how to guard themselves against the calamities that ambition, hate and faith in force threaten to send us as well as on them, can take precedence of this.

"The need of capital in the period following the close of this war will constitute one of the greatest problems that the world has had to face," Mr. Hill continues. "Before the outbreak these warring nations had already strained their credit to the breaking point to provide for internal development and at the same time maintain their enormous military and naval establishments. The combined debt of the five principal nations now fighting amounted in 1912 to more than $23,000,000,000. Their expenditures during the continuance of hostilities run from $25,000,000 a day to twice that sum."

Existing excess baggage rates have been held by the Interstate Commerce Commission not to be unreasonable. Charges, however, for baggage of excess value were said to be excessive and a rate was established by the commission at ten cents for each $100 of fraction thereof above the agreed upon maximum value. The minimum charge for increased valuation will be ten cents.

The case brought to the commission originally by the National Baggage committee, representing numerous commercial organizations and traveling men, was directed against practically all railroad lines.

SYKESVILLE BRICKLAYER MURDEROUSLY ATTACKED

William Hoffman, for many years a bricklayer and resident of Sykesville, was shot in the neck on Wednesday night by an Italian, also of Sykes-

AMUSEMENTS

"The Quaker Girl"

With all the pomp and magnificence which characterized its run of an entire year at the Park theatre, New York, John P. Siodum, offers the English musical success, "The Quaker Girl," at the opera house tonight.

The two love stories in "The Quaker Girl" are involved in the plot with an American naval attaché of the embassy in Paris and the "Quaker Girl" as the parties of the first part, and with an exiled Bonapartist princess and a king's messenger as the other couple. The numerous songs and dances that are introduced come naturally in continuing the story and there is no attempt at effect so much in vogue in musical comedy in this country.

The presenting company is one of the largest seen here, and improved a stunning company is one of the largest ever seen here, and includes a singing chorus and ballet. Taken as a whole, "The Quaker Girl" promises to be the real musical game of the season's bookings.

GILBERT AND THAYER "THE QUAKER GIRL"

IN THE MOVIES

MOVIES TO HELP SALE OF RED CROSS SEALS

As an aid in the Red Cross Christmas Seal sale and the anti-tuberculosis campaign a motion picture dealing with the problem of tuberculosis in children has been prepared by Thomas A. Edison, and beginning this week it will be shown throughout the county. The film was produced in cooperation with the national association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis.

The plot of the picture, which is entitled "The Temple of Moloch," is laid in a small village, the chief industries of which are some potteries, owned by Harrison Pratt, Dr. Jordan, health officer of the village, is struck with the prevalence of tuberculosis and on investigation finds that the unsanitary working conditions in the Pratt potteries, together with the unhealthy state of the tenement homes of the workmen have most to do with the spread of the disease. He calls the matter to the attention of Pratt, who rebuffs him and tells him it is no use to try to do anything in the matter.

Meanwhile, Dr. Jordan has fallen in love with Eloise, the daughter of Harrison Pratt, and she has become interested in his work, particularly that at the preventorium for children from tuberculous families. Three times Jordan appeals to Pratt, and each time he is rebuffed. Finally, in despair between his love for Eloise and his duty, he exposes the conditions he has discovered through articles in the newspapers. When Eloise, who is ignorant of conditions in the factory, sees the paper she resents what she considers an insult to her father, and returns her engagement ring to him.

A week later, Dr. Jordan and son are found to have tuberculosis. When Eric Swanson, a former employee of Pratt's, who had been discharged because he had contracted "potter's rot" in the mills and was no longer able to work, hears of it, he exults over the calamity, which he views as a sort of personal vengeance.

HUMOR AND ROMANCE AT THE GLOBE TONIGHT

"The Shadow," a real feature in 3 reels. Jean's hatred towards Sarah, her stepmother, drives the latter to wage a friend of the family and her former suitor for advice. How Jean, stricken with remorse, sacrifices herself to save her stepmother from disgrace will bring tears to every eye.

"In Lieu of Damages" is a thrilling romance in a mountain community.

"Tim, the Terror" Tim is a desperate outlaw who proves quite noble when he finds that a poor widow is in danger of eviction on account of a mortgage of $3500 on her home held by Dutch magistrate. Tim gives himself up, gives her the reward, breaks out of jail and then makes his Dutch rival, the magistrate, eat the mortgage and marry him to the widow.

"The Doom of Duty," a vigorous Mexican war incident with a fierce battle and a test between love and duty.

He musters all of his strength and steals away to the Pratt home, where Eloise and her brother are taking the cure for tuberculosis on the porch and there denounces Pratt, gloating over him and telling him that his son and daughter were originally infected as young children by Cora Swanson, when she served as nurse girl for the Pratts several years ago. So struck is Pratt by this denunciation and the graphic story of Swanson, which is affirmed by Dr. Jordan, that he decides to clean up conditions in his potteries and tenements at once.

The story ends with a Christmas scene, in which the engagement ring is returned to the hand of Eloise and Dr. Jordan receives as a present a liberal check for the employment of open air schools and other anti-tuberculosis agencies in the town.

Czar Banishes Strong Drink.

Petrograd, Russia, Nov. 20.—There is prohibition in Russia, prohibition which means that not a drop of vodka, whisky, brandy, gin or any other strong liquor is obtainable from one end to the other of a territory populated by 150,000,000 people and covering one-sixth of the inhabitable globe.

The story of how strong drink has been utterly banished from the Russian empire was related to the Associated Press by Michael Demitrovitch Tchelisheff, the man directly responsible for putting an end to Russia's great vice, the vodka habit.

It should be said in the beginning that the word prohibition in Russia must be taken literally. Its use does not imply a partially successful attempt to curtail the consumption of liquor resulting in drinking in secret places, the abuse of medical licenses and general evasion and subterfuge. It does mean that a vast population who consume $1,000,000,000 worth of vodka a year; whose ordinary condition has been described by Russians themselves as ranging from a slight degree of stimulation upward, has been lifted almost by one day from a drunken inertia to sobriety. The nation has been compelled virtually over night, to abandon its enormous daily consumption of vodka, a liquor that is almost pure alcohol, and become abstemious to the extent of letting no liquor pass its lips.

On that day when the mobilization of the Russian army began, special policemen visited every public place where vodka was sold, locked up the supply of the liquor and placed on the shop the imperial seal. Since the manufacture and sale of vodka is a government monopoly in Russia, it is not a difficult thing to enforce prohibition.

From the day this step was taken, drunkenness vanished in Russia. The results are seen at once in the peasantry; already they are beginning to look like a different race. The marks of suffering, the pinched looks of illness and improper nourishment have gone from their faces. There has been also a remarkable change in the appearance of their clothing. Their clothes are cleaner, and both the men and women appear more neatly and better dressed. The destitute character of the homes of the poor has been replaced with something like order and thrift.

In Petrograd and Moscow the effect of these improved conditions is felt. On holidays in these two cities in bridges always filled the police stations and often they lay about on the sidewalks and even in the streets. Things are so different today that untended women may now pass at night through parts of these cities where it was formerly dangerous even for men. Minor crimes and misdemeanors have almost vanished.

GERMANS EXPECT TO RETAKE WARSAW

Kaiser's Troops Capture Three Towns in Russian Poland, is Report

BERLIN FULL OF RUMORS OF VICTORY

But No Decision Has Been Reached in the Great Eastern Battle Being Fought Between the Warta and the Vistula Rivers—Dispatches State That the Losses on Both Sides Are Very Heavy—Petrograd Announces That the Russians Have Taken Many Prisoners.

(By International News Service)

Berlin, Nov. 23.—Steadily pressing forward on the Vistula, the German forces in Russian Poland captured the towns of Lomza, Debske and Reznaw, it is semi-officially announced. Reznaw is thirty miles west of Warsaw.

News of the capture of Lomza, on the south bank of the Bzura river indicates that the Germans have crossed that river in force. The recapture of Warsaw by the Germans is imminent it is stated.

Both Sides Lose Heavily

Petrograd, Nov. 23.—The German column between the Warta and Vistula rivers, according to yesterday's official reports from Russian Poland, comprises six army corps, and presents a front fifty-five miles in extent. The two rivers prevent flanking by either side, hence the fighting consists of straight frontal attacks, in which the losses of both armies are heavy, but neither side so far has been able to gain a marked advantage.

The German military observers contend, however, that further in this region, since the Russian concentration, which was delayed by bad roads and by lack of railroads, now is complete.

Russians Take 2000 Prisoners

The following official report from general headquarters was issued last night:

"The fighting between the Vistula and the Warta continues with great persistence. We have obtained some partial successes.

"The fighting on the front of Czestochowa-Cracow have resulted in no essential changes. We have taken 2000 prisoners and some machine guns.

"In Galicia the Austrians have evacuated Novy-Sandez under the pressure of our troops."

Dispatches received in Petrograd from Tiflis, Transcaucasia, explain the halt in the Russian advance toward Kopylov: was due to the discovery that an entire Turkish army was massed at Erzerum. The Russians are contending themselves, it is said, with holding their positions while awaiting reinforcements.

OVER ONE MILLION VOTES WERE CAST

Official Figures of Election of United States Senator

MAJORITY AGAINST PENROSE

If Opposition to Penrose Had Been Combined He Would Have Been Defeated by More Than 20,000—Pinchot Led Palmer by 3000—Personal Liberty Vote Was Small.

About one million one hundred thousand votes were cast at the recent state election for United States senator, governor, congressmen, members of the legislature and judges. The totals of the Brumbaugh-McCormick vote amount to 1,040,931. The combined vote for United States senator for Penrose, Palmer and Pinchot was 1,048,162. When the figures are completed at Harrisburg so as to include the other candidates, such as Socialist, Prohibition, etc., it will bring the total close to the estimate.

The totals for the presidential electors in 1912 was 1,217,796 votes. It will at once be seen by comparison that the interest of the voters in the issues of November 3 was intense. The contest against Senator Penrose drew out the voters. The Personal Liberty party, about which so much was said in the campaign and which it was claimed was to do so much for Penrose, gave him only 20,286 votes. Of these about 1800 were cast in Elk county where Senator James K. P. Hall, the Democratic leader, resides. The Hall Democrats flocked to the Penrose banner under the Personal Liberty disguise and thus evaded supporting Palmer and McCormick. The Keystone party managed to creep in under the law with a total of about 37,838 for Brumbaugh.

The Personal Liberty folks gave Brumbaugh 17,818 votes. The Bull Mooseers polled nearly 50,000 votes; the Roosevelt Progressives nearly 20,000 votes. These went to Gifford Pinchot alone, and are lumped in his return from Allegheny county, so they cannot be distinguished in the hurried official count. In the 66 counties outside Allegheny the Bull Mooseers polled 42,143 votes and the Roosevelt Progressives, 14,426.

The official vote for lieutenant governor, secretary of internal affairs and other officers, including the congressmen-at-large, will probably be announced soon from Harrisburg.

The official vote for lieutenant governor is given below:

United States Senator.
Boies Penrose, Rep. 492,326
Boies Penrose, Per Lib. 29,286

Total 512,612
Gifford Pinchot, Wash. 212,597
Gifford Pinchot, Wash. 42,143
Gifford Pinchot, Roosevelt 14,426

Total 269,076

A. M. Palmer, Dem. 206,474

Governor.
Vance McCormick, Democrat, 372,499
Vance McCormick, Wash. 139,609

AIR-LINE RAILROAD ACROSS THE STATE

Revival of a Project Inaugurated Several Years Ago

HOUTZDALE IS ON THE ROUTE

New Road Would Tap a Section Now Without Adequate Shipping Facilities and Would Reach Part of State in Which 2,500,000 People Reside—Would Cost $27,000,000.

Harrisburg, Nov. 23.—The sum of $27,000,000 will be expended in building the New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago Railway company's air line through the central part of Pennsylvania, if the plans of this company, which was organized after a sheriff's sale in Pittsburgh, October 31, are carried out.

The company is now nominally owned by Edward T. Noble, of the law firm of Evans, Noble & Evans, of Pittsburgh, but in a statement filed with the Pennsylvania public service commission he says that he will convey the property, franchises and rights to the new corporation. Mr. Noble bought the property at the Pittsburgh sale, the company then being known as the New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago Air Line Railroad company.

The company is owned by the Harriman estate, and the completion of its plans, which has already used up $5,000 in surveys and the purchase of rights of way, will mean much additional work for the people of Pennsylvania, for this state's resources can be drawn upon for all the iron and steel, timber, ballast and labor.

The approval by the public service commission of the reorganization of the old company, chartered May 26, 1910, is virtually approval of a new charter, for under the Pennsylvania laws the company would have only until next May to apply for rechartering the old company.

The original charter of the air line railroad was issued March 16, 1906, when that company was organized after the merger of the Brush Creek and Crows Run Railroad company, Allentown, Tamaqua and Ashland company and the Indiana, Clearfield and Eastern company.

The new line will be 83.7 miles shorter than New York and Pittsburgh than any other road. Issuance of 17,000 shares of common capital stock at $50 par, or $850,000, has been authorized. The company, however, desires at this time to issue only $600,000 worth of this stock. No preferred stock is provided for.

In order that the charter would be valid, the company, a few years ago, constructed a quarter mile of track in Armstrong county, but the survey of the line has been finished. Connections will be made with other lines at Pittsburgh and at Allentown.

The route as surveyed passes through Allegheny, Westmoreland, Armstrong, Indiana, Clearfield, Centre, Blair, Mifflin, Union, Snyder, Northumberland, Schuylkill and Lehigh counties.

AMERICANS EVACUATE CITY OF YPRES

(By International News Service)
Ypres, Nov. 23.—The embarkation of 6000 American troops on eight transports began early today and was completed by the middle afternoon. Several thousand Caranzais were waiting outside the city to occupy it as soon as all the Americans had embarked.

The departure of the troops was mourned by many Mexicans as a calamity. They would have liked the Americans to stay until peace had been established.

The war ships will remain in the harbor to protect Americans.

The intention of Carranza to make Ypres his capital may result in an attack by the Villistas. Uncertain rumors are current here that the Zapatistas attacked Mexico City and are fighting in the streets.

Wires are cut.
New York, Nov. 23.—Communications with Mexico City today have been cut off.

Preparing for Attack

Mexico City, Nov. 23.—Armed guards were placed on the roof of the national palace and a large force was stationed in the arsenal by Gen. Blanco to prevent an attempt at seizure. Students formed in procession when the news of the American troops evacuating Ypres reached here. They paraded the principal streets, shouting "Viva Mexico."

Another False Alarm

An alarm of fire from the Third ward yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock started the citizens and called out the firemen but the alarm was found to be false before the engines were gotten out.

D. S. Watkins, of DuBois, transacted business at the court house Saturday.

Dan A. Moyer, of Kylertown, spent Saturday in town transacting business affairs.

K. A. Sloppy, of New Millport, was the guest of Clearfield friends on Saturday.

Miss Gertrude Gulick, of Greensburg, spent Sunday with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Gulick, on Williams street.

Christians Killed in Trebizond

(By International News Service)

Athens, Nov. 23.—A dispatch from Constantinople says a large force of Turkish troops were transferred from Adrianople to Trebizond, Asia Minor. They attacked all shops of Christians in the latter town and killed three.

Two battles and a punitive expedition are going to finish the Zaians, whose rebellion is serious. The tribe is the most piratical in the Atlas, and is able to furnish 12,000 horsemen.

Paris, Nov. 23.—Shells hurled into Ypres by the Germans set fire to the famous cathedral of St. Martin, the noted Halls, or cloth hall, and numerous houses. The Germans are directing their attacks against Ypres, Soissons and Rheims. Three attacks in the Argonne have been repulsed.

Violent Cannonading

The announcement says: "Yesterday marked a violent cannonade by the enemy, which directed their blow particularly upon Ypres, where the cathedral belfry, the Halls and numerous houses were set on fire and upon Soissons and Rheims. At Argonne the day was very warm. Three sharp attacks by the enemy were repulsed. In the Vosges region and the Vosges the situation is unchanged."

Germans Driven Back

Continued artillery fighting was reported in yesterday's official statements of the battle in France and Belgium. Batteries of the allies have demolished many lines of German trenches, driving the Germans back to new defenses.

German bombardment of Ypres, in Belgium, was announced in last night's communique, which says:

"Today there was a violent bombardment of Ypres, during which the market place and the town hall were destroyed."

"In the region of Soissons and Valley there was rather strong cannonading. There is nothing to report from other parts of the front."

Demolished German Trenches

Following is yesterday afternoon's official statement:

"The day of the 21st was calm upon the whole front. In Belgium, as in the region from Arras to the Oise, there were only intermittent cannonades. Our artillery evidenced in general more activity than that of the enemy. Our batteries succeeded in demolishing many lines of German trenches. The enemy worked elsewhere to construct new ones in the rear."

"The day was equally calm upon the Aisne, in the Champagne district, as well as in the Argonne, upon the heights of the Meuse and in the Vosges."

PRESIDENT'S THANKSGIVING DAY PLANS UNCERTAIN

Washington, Nov. 23.—Conflicting rumors surrounding President Wilson's Thanksgiving day plans led Secretary Tamm to announce that Mr. Wilson will go to Williamsburg, Mass., to visit his daughter, Mrs. F. J. Sayre, if public business permitted, but would attend the Pan-American mass at St. Patrick's church here, if he remained in Washington.

French Troops Destroyed By Moroccan Tribe

(By International News Service)

Madrid, Nov. 23.—The defeat of a French column and the slaughter of thirty officers and six hundred soldiers by Moroccan tribesmen is reported in press dispatch from Tangier.

The dispatch says: "While a French column under Col. Laverdure was returning to Jarama after punishing the Zaians, the Zaians, it was surprised and completely destroyed by five thousand Zaians. The French lost thirty officers and six hundred soldiers. The tribesmen were wounded."

Two battles and a punitive expedition are going to finish the Zaians, whose rebellion is serious. The tribe is the most piratical in the Atlas, and is able to furnish 12,000 horsemen.

Good evening! Have you begun to feel the spirit of Thanksgiving pulling at your instabilities?

Blanket hornet left standing in the street.

Even at that, those German widows cannot sell their iron trousers.

With three capitals Mexico ought to be able to get along for a while.

Most of the Pittsburgh hunters hunt as if they had nothing to eat at home.

Repeal of the hunters' license act would not be detrimental to the state or the hunters.

The Third ward is prolific in fire alarms, but fortunately the alarms are mostly false.

City court is so called because the law is concerned in the cases are as common as each other.

Looking at it in another way, the defeat of Palmer was a mistake to an uncompromising political boss.

Probably it is no reflection on the progressiveness of the men of the United States that the women excel them in dancing.

Eleven men will be hanged in Arizona on December eleventh, but the railroads will not run excursions to the places of execution.

The newspaper reports of hunting parties which do not mention one or more Pittsburghers as members thereof are a fairly close days.

Still, it might be well for the hunter to postpone ordering new signboards for those Belgian hares until he is sure that he can hold them.

An air line railroad across the state, passing through Clearfield county, is planned by capitalists. Let us hope that it is not a hot air line.

If there are rogues in this county it is time for the authorities to run them down, even if state police have to be brought here to do the work.

An Oklahoma legislator has gone against a bill in the Senate of his state, which goes to prove that under popular rule some generous blunders are committed.

It is true that charity begins at home, but wealthy Clearfield can lend aid to the suffering Belgians and still have money enough left to take care of the deserving poor in her own town.

France did not learn long ago that she had the red pantions of her soldiers, and the wonder has been that France did not learn long ago that bright colors on the firing line help the enemy to find targets.

Senator Furness carried seven of the counties in Pennsylvania, and one of the seven was "barren and contested" Philadelphia. Republican headquarters should try to explain wherein the election returns show the senator's popularity.

A Philadelphia asserts that there are fifteen reasons why men desert their wives, among the reasons being the mother-in-law, business of the husband, extravagance of the wife and drunkenness. He fails to mention busy marriages by children, which is the chief cause.

Washington authorities are evidently copying after the customs of Europe when news. Secretary Daniels suppressed for three days the fact that the firing on the launch of the American cruiser Tennessee was "not a hostile act." What is Daniels' explanation for keeping the American people in suspense so long?

SHOULD BE REPEALED

State Senator Sprout would have the incoming legislature repeal the law requiring hunters to take out a license. He claims that the issuance of a license brings no benefit to anybody but the state, neither does it bring about an increase in the quantity of game in the state. The senator says that the license law prevents boys going into the woods to hunt and that this is not only a hardship, but prevents that practice with firearms which is so necessary to the proper training of soldiers.

It is evident that there is a sentiment among the sportsmen of the state in favor of a new deal from the legislature. Too long has the present head of the state game commission listened to the siren song of the game bugs from the big cities. It is about time that the hunters who engage in the sport for the pleasure of hunting rather than to gloat over what they kill be considered by the game commission and the state legislature. There should be an entirely new set of game laws enacted, and the new laws should favor the true hunter, not the pot hunter.

WHY MONOPOLY WINS

Down in Williamsport the city commissioners, as in duty bound, advertised for bids for the lighting of the city. The Lycoming-Edison company has had the lighting contract for many years and was so sure that it would receive the contract this year that it did not change its figures materially from ten years ago. The Citizens company also entered the contest, offered to furnish the light for the municipality at a cost several thousand dollars below the bid of the Lycoming-Edison company. The city commissioners agreed to award the contract to the Citizens company.

Immediately the friends of the Lycoming company got busy. The commissioners were assailed with protests from the company and its adherents, even the city solicitor joining in the clamor against awarding the light contract to the Citizens company.

It is claimed that the Citizens company is not in a position to do the lighting as it has not erected poles and strung wires for that purpose. The Citizens company declares that it will be prepared to light the city as soon as possible after the contract is signed and approved by the public service commission.

There is talk of taking the matter into court to test the validity of the Citizens company bid, and the city solicitor went so far as to wash his hands of the proposition to permit the Citizens company to light the city. Ten years ago, when the contract was awarded to the old company, it was alleged that the company had prepared two bids, one to be handed in if another company presented a bid and the other to be given to the committee if no other bid were received. The differences between the two bids was said to have been considerable. When a monopoly gets hold of a municipality it is difficult to shake off its clutches.

It is becoming apparent after talks with the organization leaders that Governor Shuman will not be actively aided by the Republican organization in his fight for a local option bill. The organization wished here prior to the election that the Voters would lead the fight for local option. Some of the Vore legislators might support such a bill, but the Shuman delegation would not be antagonistic for such legislation.—Philadelphia Item.

HER ENTERTAINMENT DEFIES CLASSIFICATION

NETTIE JANE DUNAWAY.

Americans have risen nobly to give to the Belgian cause and they should support all such causes, but in the zeal to give as everybody else is giving they should not forget the need of charity at home.

The Woman's club has prepared a rich treat for the citizens in connection with its weekly reading of the poor of Clearfield. Since the same time away, who will supersede "The Lady of Decoration" at the opera house Wednesday evening, November 23, is a charming young woman whose entertainment will be of that kind which is pleasing to all classes of people. The Million Dollar Mystery

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

"But we can't stir the old fool. We can't get him out of that house. I've tried to get that maid to put a little something in his coffee, but she won't do it. She says that she is old and she agreed in regard to Florence, but her agreement ended there."

"Why, Susan, what's the matter?" cried Florence.

We have given the jade five thousand already and she is clamoring for the balance."

"Have you threatened her?" asked Olga.

Braine smiled a little. "My dear woman, it is fifty-fifty. While I have a hold on her, it is not quite so good as she has on me. We are not dealing with an ordinary servant we could threaten and scare. No, indeed, she is a shrewd little woman who desperately wanted money. And she will be paid; not getting out of it. She will not move another step, one way or the other, after she receives the balance. Hargrave will have a pretty steep bill to pay when the time comes."

"She has no idea where the million is."

"If she had, she's quite capable of looking it off all by herself," said Braine.

"The doctor laughed. "Olga" went on Braine. "You must look at it as I do: that it is still in the middle of the game, and we have neither lost nor won."

"How do you know that Hargrave may not have it all back and call an organization quite as capable as not as large as mine?" suggested the physician.

"That is not possible," Braine declared without hesitation.

"Well, it begins to look that way to me. We've never made a move yet that hasn't been blocked."

"Pure luck each time, I tell you; the devil's own luck always at the critical moment, when everything seems to be in our hands. Now, we want Florence, and we've tried a hundred ways to accomplish this fact and failed. The question is, how to get her away from her companion?"

"Simple enough," said the doctor complacently.

"Out with it, if you have an idea."

The doctor leaned forward and whispered a few words.

"Well, I'm hanged!" Braine laughed and slapped the doctor on the shoulder. "The simplest thing in the world. Mad dog wouldn't be in it. I always said that you had gray matter if you cared to exert yourself."

"Thanks," replied the doctor dryly. "I'll drop down there tomorrow, if you say so, ostensibly to see the other patient. It will make a decent of a disturbance."

"Not if you scare the hotel people."

"That is what I propose to do. They will not want such a thing known. It would scare every one away for the rest of the season. But of course this depends upon whether they are honest or in the hotel business to make money."

Again Braine laughed. "Bring her back to New York alone, Esculapian, and a fat check is yours. Nothing could be simpler than an idea like this. It's a fact; no man can think of everything, and you've just proved it to me. I've tried to do a general's work without aids. Olga, does any one watch me come and go any more?"

"No, I've watched a dozen nights. The man has gone. Either he found out what he wanted or he gave up the job. To my mind he found out what he wanted."

"And what's that?"

"Heaven knows," discouragedly. "Come, doctor, suppose you and I go down to Daly's for a little turn at billiards?"

"Nothing would suit me better."

"All aboard, then! Good-night, Olga. Keep your hair on! I mean your own hair. We're going to win out, don't you worry. In all games the minute you begin to doubt you begin to lose."

go his chair again, and effectually would sing the keys of the machine. The story he was writing was in the ordinary routine; the arrival of a great ocean liner with some political notables who were not adverse to denouncing the present administration. You will have noticed, no doubt, that some disgruntled politician is always denouncing the present administration. It matters not if it be Republican or Democratic. When you are out of a good job you are always prone to denounce. The yarn bored Norton because his thoughts were miles southward.

He completed his story, yanked out the final sheet, called for a copy boy, rose and sauntered over to the managing editor's door, before which he paused indecisively. The "old man" had been after him lately regarding the Hargrave story, and he doubted if his errand would prove successful. However, he boldly opened the door and walked in.

"Humph!" said the "old man," twisting his cigar into the corner of his mouth. "Got that story?"

Norton sat down. "Yes, but I have not got it for print yet. Mr. Hargrave when you gave me the Hargrave job you gave me carte blanche."

"I did," grimly. "But, on the other hand, I did not give you ten years to clear it up."

"Have I ever fallen down on a good story?" quipped.

"Well, if you'll have patience I'll not fall down on this one. It's the greatest criminal story I ever handled, but it's so big that it's going to take time."

"Gimme an outline."

"I have promised not to," with a grimace equal to the "old man's."

"If a line of this story trickles out it will mean that every other paper will be moving around, and in the end will discover enough to spoil my end of it. I'll tell you this much: The most colossal band of thieves this country ever saw is at one end of the stick. And when I say that, counterfeiting and politics and millions are involved, you'll understand how big it is. This gang has city protection. We are running them all into a corner, but we want that corner so deep that none of them can wriggle out of it."

"Umhm. Go on."

"I want two months more."

The "old man" beat a tattoo with his fat pencil. "Sixty days, then. And if the yarn isn't on my desk at mid night, you—"

"Hunt for another job. All right, I came in to ask for three days leave."

You're your own boss, Jim, for sixty days more. Whadda y' mean counterfeiting?"

"These new tens and twenties. It's a stumble on that right, why, I can turn it over without conflicting with the other story."

"Well, go to it."

"I'm turning in my regular work day in and day out, and while doing it I've gone through more hairbreadth escapes than you ever heard of. They have been after me, I've dodged falling sales; I've been shanghaied, poisoned; but I haven't said a word."

"Good Lord! Do you mean all that?"

"Every word, sir."

"I'll make it ninety days, Jim; and if this story comes in I'll see that you get a corking bonus."

"I'm not looking for bonuses. I'm proud of my work. To get this story is all I want. That'll be enough. Thanks for the extension in time. Good-night."

HIGH COST OF BASEBALLING COULD EASILY BE CUT

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

(Special to Progress.)

New York, November 22.—Those baseball moguls who are shrieking about the high cost of baseballing could swat the aforementioned high cost a lousy swat by using the paring knife on their rosters.

It seems to be fashionable, but entirely unnecessary, for major leagues clubs to carry from 25 to 30 men on their pay roll all year long. These same clubs could get along just as nicely by carrying 30 players and no more. Such a plan would annually save the clubs about $25,000 in salaries and about $5000 in travelling expenses. A salary "not to be sneezed at" in these parlous baseball times.

To us it seems like bank extravagance and folly for a baseball club to carry more than 20 players at the very most. The men who own the clubs seem to think otherwise just now but some of these days when a strict retrenchment policy must be enforced they will whittle their lists down to 20 men and discover that those players they discarded are not missed except on pay days.

The average major league club now carries about 10 pitchers, four catchers, six outfielders, six infielders one or two general utility men, a manager, an assistant manager (or coach) and about two trainers.

A major league ball club could operate and successfully—with six pitchers, three catchers, four outfielders, five infielders, one general utility man, one manager and one trainer. That would make a total of 21 men including the manager and a trainer—19 players.

The Boston Braves are a fine example of how much can be accomplished with a few men. The Braves it is true carried as many men on its roster last year as any other team, but the Braves used fewer men after Stallings had decided upon his combination than any other team.

Stallings over a stretch of more than two months used two catchers, five infielders and five outfielders. In the box he used only three pitchers until the double header season came along and even then he could have gotten along very nicely with six pitchers.

The Athletics are another sample of how much can be accomplished with few players. The Athletics carried about 25 players during the year, yet Connie Mack could have accomplished the same thing with sixteen men, for the other nine men did little else than warm the bench during the entire season.

"What would happen to a club carrying only 20 men if it hit a streak of hard luck that laid up some of its regulars?" is the natural question for as radical a suggestion as cutting the roster down to 20 men.

The answer is simple—"fill their places with the extra men."

If the first baseman and second baseman were laid up at the same time the utility man could play first, second, and the catcher could play first. If two outfielders, two infielders, a catcher and a pitcher, were rendered hors de baseball at the same time a big calamity indeed—a club carrying only twenty men wouldn't be so badly crippled as it would seem upon first thought.

The club still would have five pitchers. Stallings needed only three to win the pennant for him: The club would have two catchers. That's all Connie Mack and Stallings needed.

With two of the four outfielders injured there would be two left. The utility player could free the other garden.

The club carrying five infielders would have three left if two were injured. The extra-catcher could be placed on first and the three other infielders could fill the second and third and shortstopping jobs.

Some criticism, no doubt, will be made concerning the suggestion of playing the catcher at first, or playing in the outfield if necessary. The catcher, some may say, may be a good catcher but poor in any other position.

True, practice makes perfect. If a club operated with 20 men only, it could teach each man on the team to become a general utility man. In the old days pitchers used to play in the outfield or infield on days when they weren't on the mound. Why not now?

If records count for anything, the pitchers who used to work every day on the old days either in the box or in the field, lost none of their pitching prowess because of constant work.

And the human race was no harder in those days of all Spalding, Johnson, Ward, Tim Whitney, Charley Radbourn, John Clarkson, Larry Corcoran, than it is in these days of Christy Mathewson, Walker, Johnson, Jeff Tesreau, Joe Wood, Eddie Plank, Dick Rudolph and Grover Alexander.

INCREASED RAILROAD RATES A VITAL NEED

James J. Hill, in an article on the "After Effects of the War on Business and Railroads" in the current issue of the Railway Age Gazette, expresses belief that catastrophe threatens this country as the result of the war if the railroads are not given help.

"The magnitude and urgency of this matter," he says, "have not yet impressed themselves duly upon the people of this country. They have been too stunned by the awful and unexpected spectacle abroad to realize the railroad situation in the light thrown upon it by the wild flames of conflict. But it cannot be relegated to a later time or an inferior place.

"The railroad is the sap of the industrial tree. It is the thermometer of credit.

"No duty devolving upon those who sit in the watch tower while nations sway and fall below them, studying how to guard themselves against the calamities that ambition, hate and faith in force threaten to send us as well as on them, can take precedence of this.

"The need of capital in the period following the close of this war will constitute one of the greatest problems that the world has had to face," Mr. Hill continues. "Before the outbreak these warring nations had already strained their credit to the breaking point to provide for internal development and at the same time maintain their enormous military and naval establishments. The combined debt of the five principal nations now fighting amounted in 1912 to more than $23,000,000,000. Their expenditures during the continuance of hostilities run from $25,000,000 a day to twice that sum."

Existing excess baggage rates have been held by the Interstate Commerce Commission not to be unreasonable. Charges, however, for baggage of excess value were said to be excessive and a rate was established by the commission at ten cents for each $100 of fraction thereof above the agreed upon maximum value. The minimum charge for increased valuation will be ten cents.

The case brought to the commission originally by the National Baggage committee, representing numerous commercial organizations and traveling men, was directed against practically all railroad lines.

AMUSEMENTS

"The Quaker Girl"

With all the pomp and magnificence which characterized its run of an entire year at the Park theatre, New York, John P. Stodum, offers the English musical success, "The Quaker Girl," at the opera house tonight.

The two love stories in "The Quaker Girl" are involved in the plot with an American naval attaché of the embassy in Paris and the "Quaker Girl" as the parties of the first part, and with an exiled Bonapartist princess and a king's messenger as the other couple. The numerous songs and dances that are introduced come naturally in continuing the story and there is no attempt at effect so much in vogue in musical comedy in this country.

The presenting company is one of the largest seen here, and improved a stunning company is one of the largest ever seen here, and includes a singing chorus and ballet. Taken as a whole, "The Quaker Girl" promises to be the real musical game of the season's bookings.

GILBERT AND THAYER "THE QUAKER GIRL"

IN THE MOVIES

MOVIES TO HELP SALE OF RED CROSS SEALS

As an aid in the Red Cross Christmas Seal sale and the anti-tuberculosis campaign a motion picture dealing with the problem of tuberculosis in children has been prepared by Thomas A. Edison, and beginning this week it will be shown throughout the county. The film was produced in cooperation with the national association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis.

The plot of the picture, which is entitled "The Temple of Moloch," is laid in a small village, the chief industries of which are some potteries, owned by Harrison Pratt, Dr. Jordan, health officer of the village, is struck with the prevalence of tuberculosis and on investigation finds that the unsanitary working conditions in the Pratt potteries, together with the unhealthy state of the tenement homes of the workmen have most to do with the spread of the disease. He calls the matter to the attention of Pratt, who rebuffs him and tells him it is no use to try to do anything in the matter.

Meanwhile, Dr. Jordan has fallen in love with Eloise, the daughter of Harrison Pratt, and she has become interested in his work, particularly that at the preventorium for children from tuberculous families. Three times Jordan appeals to Pratt, and each time he is rebuffed. Finally, in despair between his love for Eloise and his duty, he exposes the conditions he has discovered through articles in the newspapers. When Eloise, who is ignorant of conditions in the factory, sees the paper she resents what she considers an insult to her father, and returns her engagement ring to him.

A week later, Dr. Jordan and son are found to have tuberculosis. When Eric Swanson, a former employee of Pratt's, who had been discharged because he had contracted "potter's rot" in the mills and was no longer able to work, hears of it, he exults over the calamity, which he views as a sort of personal vengeance.

"Tim, the Terror" Tim is a desperate outlaw who proves quite noble when he finds that a poor widow is in danger of eviction on account of a mortgage of $3500 on her home held by Dutch magistrate. Tim gives himself up, gives her the reward, breaks out of jail and then makes his Dutch rival, the magistrate, eat the mortgage and marry him to the widow.

"The Doom of Duty," a vigorous Mexican war incident with a fierce battle and a test between love and duty.

He musters all of his strength and steals away to the Pratt home, where Eloise and her brother are taking the cure for tuberculosis on the porch and there denounces Pratt, gloating over him and telling him that his son and daughter were originally infected as young children by Cora Swanson, when she served as nurse girl for the Pratts several years ago. So struck is Pratt by this denunciation and the graphic story of Swanson, which is affirmed by Dr. Jordan, that he decides to clean up conditions in his potteries and tenements at once.

The story ends with a Christmas scene, in which the engagement ring is returned to the hand of Eloise and Dr. Jordan receives as a present a liberal check for the employment of open air schools and other anti-tuberculosis agencies in the town.

Czar Banishes Strong Drink.

Petrograd, Russia, Nov. 20.—There is prohibition in Russia, prohibition which means that not a drop of vodka, whisky, brandy, gin or any other strong liquor is obtainable from one end to the other of a territory populated by 150,000,000 people and covering one-sixth of the inhabitable globe.

The story of how strong drink has been utterly banished from the Russian empire was related to the Associated Press by Michael Demitrovitch Tchelisheff, the man directly responsible for putting an end to Russia's great vice, the vodka habit.

It should be said in the beginning that the word prohibition in Russia must be taken literally. Its use does not imply a partially successful attempt to curtail the consumption of liquor resulting in drinking in secret places, the abuse of medical licenses and general evasion and subterfuge. It does mean that a vast population who consume $1,000,000,000 worth of vodka a year; whose ordinary condition has been described by Russians themselves as ranging from a slight degree of stimulation upward, has been lifted almost by one day from a drunken inertia to sobriety. The nation has been compelled virtually over night, to abandon its enormous daily consumption of vodka, a liquor that is almost pure alcohol, and become abstemious to the extent of letting no liquor pass its lips.

On that day when the mobilization of the Russian army began, special policemen visited every public place where vodka was sold, locked up the supply of the liquor and placed on the shop the imperial seal. Since the manufacture and sale of vodka is a government monopoly in Russia, it is not a difficult thing to enforce prohibition.

From the day this step was taken, drunkenness vanished in Russia. The results are seen at once in the peasantry; already they are beginning to look like a different race. The marks of suffering, the pinched looks of illness and improper nourishment have gone from their faces. There has been also a remarkable change in the appearance of their clothing. Their clothes are cleaner, and both the men and women appear more neatly and better dressed. The destitute character of the homes of the poor has been replaced with something like order and thrift.

In Petrograd and Moscow the effect of these improved conditions is very marked. On holidays in these two cities in bridges always filled the police stations and often they lay about on the sidewalks and even in the streets. Things are so different today that untended women may now pass at night through parts of these cities where it was formerly dangerous even for men. Minor crimes and misdemeanors have almost vanished.

Chapelle May Jump. Large Charlotte, "SIXTY" White Sox fan John, has expressed the hope that he may catch a White Sox and Cincinnati. Charlotte complains that he was unjustly suspended just before the city series opened. He said he had medical orders from three Federal surgeons and was very lame.
